BRAZIL: In the Amazon rainforest, 305 Brazilian tribes raise their families in a way of life assumed to have disappeared from the earth. Approximately 84 of these tribes live in complete isolation from the rest of the world, meaning that many have died without ever hearing the Gospel. These generations only know the animistic religion of their ancestors, but over the last 3 years God has used CBC's relationship with Luz Para O Mundo, a local church, to interact with one of these tribes called the Xikrin. About 5% of Xikrin are Christian and only the New Testament has been translated into their native language of Kayapo. CBC mission teams work directly with the local church to break down the walls of long-held animistic culture and share the message of Jesus. Join us in 2020 and see God work first hand in Brazil!
